THE POLARIS.

ton's party had built two whaleboats, in which they had sailed south. The building of boats was the plan adopted already during my presence on board the Polaris while drifting in Smith's Sound: but then it was generally acknowledged to be impossible to build anything but scows. I feel a great anxiety for the party, so embarked, especially as Commander Greer appears to have had no tidings of them on the east coast of the channel. Shall it be their fate to encounter the dangers and feel the misery of an ice drift, or will they be rescued by a whaler? Or will Commander Greer fall in with them on his proposed trip to the Labrador coast? They started early, almost too early, according to the despatch, in the latter part of June, when the strait is full of heavy ice and navigation in two weak boats, as the despatch says, is a very difficult matter, even so difficult as to be only taken in consideration by a desperate crew.

I hope they had to make use of their boats only for a distance of two degrees and a half, and when near Cape York they were rescued by a whaler. The fate of the Polaris grieves me deeply, having borne me to latitude 82 deg. 16 min., and having been my abode for over a year, having carried me bravely through the thickest of Smith's Sound ice, and, before all, having had on board almost to the last brave and fearless men, who stood by me always but on that one day after our disaster. But now occurs to me an explanation of all the mystery, which I cannot withhold.

On the 16th of October, 1872, the Polaris steamed south on the look-out for her lost crew. She descried us when near Northumberland Island. Then a northeast storm sprung up and she sought shelter behind the island, hoping that we would reach land and might be taken to the vessel on the following day, and knowing also that if she was exposed to the gale she would only be in great danger herself and lose sight of us. When, afterwards, she found that we had drifted away or perished she steamed to Littleton Island, in the neighborhood of which she expected to find Dr. Hayes' deposit of provisions and clothing. Knowing the difficulty of managing the Polaris without steam and keeping in action the ship's pump with only fourteen hands, Captain Buddington and party were determined, as soon as they had established their second winter quarters, to build boats, prepare for an early departure in the same, and make one desperate effort to either reach a port of Greenland or to be rescued by a whaler.

Now that nothing of them has been heard on the east coast, there are only two sides to the case-either they have been already rescued, or their boats became unmanageable and were crushed in the ice or driven by current and wind, which both are westerly inclined, are drifting on the Labrador coast. Even if the boats have been crushed, the men likely have saved their lives, and are on the ice drifting down the Labrador coast.

This was all Sergeant Meyer thought proper to say in the absence of more definite information, but promised, when more accurate facts were received, to give more explicit views on the probable fate of the crew of the Polaris.

THE KELSEY CASE.

YOUNG PRIME UNDER ARREST

Proceedings of the Investigation.

HUNTINGTON, L. L., Sept. 10, 1873. Young Prime, who was arrested here on Tuesday night, as I have already written you, had the advantage of the authorities fearfully. Huntington is not the seat of the county, and the only jail that I could see was Squire Duryea's hotel, where your correspondent also was confined. As soon as rime left the Court Constable Trainor took him to the hotel barroom, and in the course of fifteen ninutes the prisoner was involved in the excite nents of a four handed game of "old sledge." Trainor was about all the while, of course, and kept at least one eye on him. By and by bedtime came and Prime was taken up stairs to a "cell" in the same corridor in which my room was located and furnished similarly to the one I occupied. Here, however, blew up as Trainor drew a pair of steel bracelets from his coat pocket. Prime swore a few compound oaths, and vowed he didn't mean to run away. But it was of no avail. He undressed and got into the bed, and then the constable handcuffed one wrist to the bedpost and locked the door. This morning custodian and prisoner were up early, and the latter has been travelling around oose all over the hotel yard, which, by the way, has no fence to separate it from the street, and comprises about two acres of ground. But arthur Prime does not mean to run away. If he wanted to do it there is no reason why he could not succeed. And unless I am very much mistaken in the young man he is not going to "squeal," as it was generally believed on Tues day evening he would do. One of the great objects in arresting him on the charge of perjury was to force him to tell all that he knows as to who were the persons who outraged Keisey,

QUITE A LITTLE BREEZE

THE GENERAL BELIEF diabolism, and knows many, if not all, of the persons who participated in it. He acts with a quiet, almost tion of a man who meant to peach.

His examination, which was set down for nine clock this morning, did not come on at that hour, but was postponed until two o'clock, in order to secure the attendance of certain persons whose there were present in the Court Justice Monfort. Messrs. Young and Platt, representing District Attorney Tuthill; John L. Smith, counsel for the prisoner, and the brothers of the deceased Kelsey with, perhaps, two dozen spectators.

The complaint was considered as read, and Mr. Smith asked to be shown the warrant, after reading which he stated that he was ready to proceed,

HENRY F. KELSEY SWORN. Mr. Platt called Henry F. Kelsey, who, being Platt-I am the complainant and am acquainted with Arthur M. Prime, though not personally: I

Tuesday.

Mr. Smith said he supposed the best way ofproving that proceeding before the Coroner would be to have the Coroner here himself. I object to the answer being taken. There is a record of that proeeding. In a charge of this kind for perjury it was Mr. Platt said the allegation was not that the perjury was committed at Oyster Bay. It was that the perjury was committed here last December in an inquiry here. It was merely proved at Oyster an inquiry here. It was merely proved at Oyster Bay.

Mr. Smith—Well, modify your question.

Mr. Platt—I shan't modify the question. Witness continued:—I was present when those proceedings were opened on the first day; I was not in the building when the jury viewed the remains; I saw the remains; Arthur M. Prime was in the inquest court room yesterday, when I saw him, in the presence of the Coroner and jury; witnesses were being examined at the time; Arthur M. Prime was sworn as a witness; I had not been subpoensed, but I was sworn and examined at that inquest as a witness; I heard Prime's testimony there yegierday; he testified in regard to his answers given in an examination before Justice Monfort, in Huntington, in December last; I heard those questions and answers then and there read over to him.

over to him.

Q. What did he testify as to the truth or falsity of the answers given to those questions before Justice Monfort.

Mr. Smith—I object to the question.

Mr. Platt (continuing)—Wherein he said that he crime of perjury upon him; it would be simply corroborative testimony of other testimony has not jet been produced.

Mr. Platt thought it was competent to ask one linear what he had heard another witness testify whitess which e had heard another witness testify to.

Mr. Smith—I have another objection; that is, that the record of that testimony—I believe it was put in writing and signed by the delendant—is the best evidence of what he testified to. Mr. Smith then cited section 404 of Wharton's Criminal Law, which holds that two witnesses are necessary to prove perjury; also section 804, to the effect that declarations of a witness are merely corroborative.

Mr. Young said what they proposed to show was that he testified here last December to certain facts and then yesterday, before Coroner Baylis, testified that what he had sworn to last December was false.

REFERENCE TO WHARTON.

REFERENCE TO WHARTON.

Mr. Smith again referred to Wharton, page 275, and said that whatever this witness testified to before the Coroner was merely corroboratory what this witness now offered was intended to what this witness now offered was intended to prove.

Mr. Young held that the authority cited should be construed as regarded the sufficiency of this evidence to convict on an indictment, not that it was inadmissible on a preliminary examination. Both gentlemen again addressed the Court briefly, at the close of which Justice Monfort said that the only weight in the objection or foundation for it was as to whether this was the best evidence. (Alter a pause) I think we will admit the answer and allow an exception.

Witness—He said it would not criminate him to have answered those questions.

Q. What did he say as to their truth or falsity? (Objection overruied.) A. He said he supposed they were faise.

Q. Did you hear the contents of this paper read over to Arthur M. Prime at the inquest yesterday? (Paper produced and identified.) A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Platt then offered in evidence the paper, a transcript of the testimony of A. M. Prime, given in December.

Mr. Smith objected to the paper, and asked Mr. Keisey how he identified it as the same that was read yesterday?

Mr. Platt said he offered the paper independent lelsey how he identified the paper independent mr. Platt said he offered the paper independent of the witness' testimony concerning it.

Mr. Smith objected to it on this offer also, on the ground that it did not appear that it was taken in any proceeding.

Mr. Platt—We can't prove everything at once.

Mr. Platt—We can't prove everything at once. any proceeding.

Mr. Platt—We can't prove everything at once.

Mr. Smith—Then you are going wrong end first.

Justice Monfort said he thought it would be best to defer the cross-examination of the witness until the direct was concluded.

Mr. Smith—There is no attest to this paper.

It does not appear that it has the name of the county affixed to it.

Witness continued—I have looked at this testimoney in this paper.

Q. Do you know that this testimony was taken in a criminal proceeding?

Mr. Smith objected on the ground that that would assume that this was testimony; besides, there are other ways of proving its regularity. I am detending this man. You gentlemen a pear to know all about this previous matter. I don't.

The Court admitted the question.

Witness—Yes.

REGULABITY OF LAST INVESTIGATION.

The Court admitted the question.

Witness—Yes.

REGULABITY OF LAST INVESTIGATION.

Mr. Smith objected to the next question as to who pressided as justice at that proceeding in December last. As all were aware, there was some doubt as to that proceeding, and the best evidence of the regularity of that proceeding would be the production of the whole record. The witness was not a lawyer or an expert, and could not tell on oath whether that proceeding last fall was or was not a regular and properly constituted proceeding. (Objection overruled).

A. It was taken before Justice Montfort, in the town of Huntington, Suffolk county; I was the complainant in that proceedings; I was present during most of the proceedings; witnesses were sworn and examined, Artaur M. Prime among the number.

CROSS-EXAMINED

By Mr. Smith.—Q. Did you see Mr. Prime sign this paper—this one you have been testifying about? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see Justice Monfort sign it? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see the Justice write it? A. No, sir.
Q. Did you see anybody write it? A. i did not.
Q. Do you know whose handwriting it is in? A.
I suppose Mr. Prime signed it.
Q. in whose handwriting is the body of this document? A. I don't know.
Q. When did you first see it? A. I could not tell you; I don't know that I was present when it was being written; I think I have seen it before to-day, but could not state the time exactly; it was some time last winter; Mr. Young showed it ome; that proceeding was held in time room; I was not present when Arthur Prime was examined.

Mr. Smith moved to strike out the testimony concerning Prime.

Mr. Piatt said he thought counsel was BARKING UP THE WRONG TREE in this whole cross-examination. The paper was evidence itself. There was no relevancy in this motion to strike out.

Mr. Smith replied briefly to the effect that the witness had testified to matters of which he had no particular knowledge. He had testified that Arthur M. Prime was examined and afterward said he was not there.

he was not there.

The testimony was read over by the Clerk, and Mr. Smith called attention to passages referred to and wished the testimony stricken out.

Justice Monfort—What passages do you wish stricken out?

Mr. Smith—I have designated them three or four times, and it is not worth while to do so any more. Q. How do you identify this as the paper you heard read at Oyster Bay? A. By some of the parts I heard read gesterday; it was not shown to me yesterday; I did not have it in my hand, nor did I read any portion of it yesterday; I never read any portion of it before I came on the witness stand to-day; I have heard it read at Mr. Young's a number of times; if it had been any other document with the same words written in it I could not have distinguished it from this; I don't know that I heard the whole of it read before the Coroner's jury yesterday; I should rather not swear that this is the same document that I heard read before the Coroner's jury yesterday.

This closed the cross-examination.

THE HUNTINGTON CRIME-A SUGGESTION.

Is it not probable that the respectable parties who planned the punishment of Kelsey procured the assistance of outsiders to do their dirty work the assistance of outsiders to do their dirty work while they, the respectable parties, appeared merely as spectators? It occurs to me that there was one more act in the drama than the authors contemplated—4. e., the death of Keisey. Possibly they were not aware of the danger attending the mutilation, and did not realize it until the death of their victim revealed it to them. Some such explanation is requisite, in view of all the facts. The above theory reconciles much that is otherwise mysterious.

PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENTS.

An exceedingly clever performance of "Wilkins Micawber" was given last evening at the Union Square Theatre. Mr. George Fawcett Rowe, after an absence of five months, reappeared in the title role. Mr. Mackay acted Urish Heap and Mrs. Wilkins took the part of Betsey Trotwood. The palm, of course, belongs to Mr. Rowe and Mr. Mackay; but Mrs. Wilkins gave a very energetic and a very English delineation of Betsey. Mr. Rowe has absorbed all the humor of Mr. Dickens' caricature, and has only occasionally spoiled it by adding a few unwarranted burlesque touches. Among these are the dilapidated pocket handkerchief, the coat-tail scene at the end of the second act, and Mr. Micawber's prayer over the bending bodies of nis children in the third. The actor was peculiarly felicitous in preserving Mr. Micawber's air of intense enjoyment in the enunciation of sonorous sentences and the recollection of old miseries. Mr. Mackay's interpretation of Heap belongs among the fluest efforts of stock actors that the New York stage has seen for years. It is as unique as it is powerful, a close study and a successful reproduction, one of the lew impersonations of the day that may be seen repeatedly without wearlsomeness and remembered long with enjoyment. "Wilkins Micawber" was succeeded by the "Belies of the Kitchen," wherein the Vokes family appeared. The same attractive bill will be retained throughout the week. kins took the part of Betsey Trotwood. The palm,
